

*Farewell Comrade
Freedom Ngubonde
26 June 2017*

We now know that you have just departed to another life, we will remember you at every moment as you were an exceptional person.

We say farewell, knowing you will take care of our paths here on earth.

Now that you are in the glory of the Lord, we know that you are very peaceful because here on earth you always did good and you strove to be happy every day of your life.

We look forward to seeing you again.

We will always remember you.

We, at Khulumani are glad we had times together just to laugh.

It seems like we just got started and then before we knew it...
the times we had together were gone.

Right now, sorrow fills our hearts.

But now that you have departed, we cannot stop bringing up your name. You will be missed for all that you taught us, for all those beautiful moments that you made us live with you and for all the ways you touched the lives of the people who turned to Khulumani for a listening ear and a willingness to help.

Now you have to rest in peace, our friend.
We should all be so lucky to have someone like you who tried to never let us go.

You have left behind the ultimate legacy – that there are so many who will remember you forever.

Is there any better way to say good-bye.

For those who still remain, take care of those you love.

Humble yourself before God and take comfort knowing that God loves you.

For now, we'll say farewell comrade, till we will meet again.
